

Fair question: who sponsored right-wing commentator's talk at the Vancouver Board of Trade?

Beth Hong | Posted: Jun 6th, 2012

Read More: Politics Canada's environmental charities Canada's right-wing Vancouver right-wing bloggers Vancouver right-wing pundits Vivian Krause

Right-wing commentator and blogger Vivian Krause gave a keynote address at the Vancouver Board of Trade on Tuesday, in which she questioned the validity of climate change and condemned US funding of Canadian environmental charities as part of a conspiracy against Canada's economic interests. The address was a 'blind sponsor' event, which meant that the sponsor requested not to be publicly listed on the Board of Trade website.

The last time the Board of Trade had an unlisted sponsor for a keynote address was in January, when federal Treasury Board President Tony Clement spoke about the Harper government's budget policies. The Vancouver Board of Trade declined to comment on the blind sponsorship of the event.

Krause came to national attention in 2010 with a series of articles she authored in the National Post and the Financial Post, in which she suggested a hidden agenda behind private US funding of Canadian environmental charities.

Her blog "Fair Questions" focuses primarily on defending Alberta's tar sands oil and the farmed salmon industries, and finding information to support her theory of a US conspiracy to control the development of Alberta's oil sands to serve private American interests. She began her research in 2006 while working on a BC government report.

Growing suspicion about Krause's facts and funding

Although Krause claims to work from home "on [her] own nickel," columnists such as The Vancouver Courier's Allen Garr have questions about whether her research is truly independent from special interests.

In BC, Krause has become a polarizing figure in environmental circles for her public attacks on the David Suzuki Foundation. In a Financial Times column called "Suzuki's Funding," she called the Foundation's US-funded Great Bear Rainforest campaign the "The Great Trade Barrier."

Nationally, the former federal Conservative staffer's research spurred an $8 million Senate inquiry into alleged tax code violations by Canadian charities. So far, no charities have been found to have broken the law, and sources say that responding to audits has distracted the charities from their work.

Like

61 people like this. Be the first of your friends.

More in Politics

Pushing Enbridge pipeline through without First Nations' consent

Koch brothers' "ideological twin" comes to Vancouver to strategize with oil industry

Harper v. Canada: 2011 election scandal brings scrutiny to PM's controversial past

Black Out Speak Out campaign protests Harper government's assault on environment

Enbridge launches million dollar ad campaign to gain public support

Related Content on the Vancouver Observer

Vivian Krause explainer

CANADA | Jenny Uechi

Vivian Krause, a resident of North Vancouver, British Columbia, is a controversial Canadian blogger who has worked in public relations for the salmon farming industry. She currently describes herself...

Allen Garr asks Vivian Krause where she gets her funding. The answer may surprise you.

PUBLISHER'S PLATFORM | Linda Solomon

Who pays Vivian Krause's bills? Vancouver Courier writer Allen Garr asked in a post today. Pointing to Krause's attacks on the millions coming from U.S. Foundations ($300 million in a 10-year...

Senator Cowan demands accountability from Tory educational and charitable organizations

POLITICS | Alexis Stoymenoff

With enviro groups under fire, Senator James Cowan says the National Finance Committee must also look into corporate lobbies and think-tanks like The Fraser Institute.

"Charitable" Fraser Institute accepted $500k in foreign funding from Koch oil billionaires

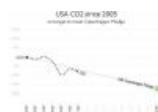

POLITICS | Alexis Stoymenoff

In just four years, U.S. Tea Party architects the Koch brothers poured half a million dollars into Canadian right-wing think tank, the Fraser Institute.

Climate change stunner: USA leads world in CO2 cuts since 2006

CLIMATE SNAPSHOT | Barry Saxifrage

Climate pollution per American has fallen to levels not seen for half a century. What's going on?

U.S. Republican Koch oil billionaires help fund the Fraser Institute. Why the Fraser Institute?

POLITICS | Jenny Uechi

Why are the Tea Party billionaires from the U.S. messing around in Canada?

Voters Taking Action on Climate Change photo shoot tackles pipelines and tankers

EARTH MATTERS | Carrie Saxifrage

A huge crowd gathered for the photo shoot for an ad urging Premier Clark to protect the BC coast.

Sun News host Ezra Levant recalls "wonderful" Koch foundation summer

POLITICS | David P. Ball

One of Canada's most conservative commentators dodges funding questions about Ethical Oil in a conversation with VO.

Enbridge oilsands pipeline protested outside Canadian Oil and Gas Export Summit

SUSTAINABILITY | Gisela Gómez

While inside the Four Seasons Hotel oil and gas industry experts were discussing to export Canadian oil at the Summit, outside the building around 40 people expressed opposition to the construction...

Queen's Diamond Jubilee: perspectives from Canadian expatriates

WORLD | Emily Barca

On her diamond jubilee, will Canadian expatriates in London be toasting the queen, or are they not bothered by the whole affair?

FOLLOW US on Twitter BECOME A FAN on Facebook SIGN UP for weekly news alerts

Comments

Add New Comment